Indonesia visa on arrival business trip

As a visa-free entry facility those who get a visa on arrival aim to visit Indonesia for tourism, family visits, social purposes, art and culture, public duties, to give speeches and visit seminars, attend international exhibitions, attend business meetings in an office, or when in transit to another country. It cannot be used to record work in Indonesia. This would be an abuse of visa on arrival (which is considered a serious offence). Likewise, be careful not to overstay this visa as you can expect an IDR 300,000 (approx. USD $23) per day penalty. If, for whatever reason, you overstayed your visa upon arrival in Indonesia then we advise you to travel to the nearest immigration point as soon as possible and contact the immigration officer to explain the matter (the longer you wait, the worse it gets). In case you overstayed because you are not able to travel (for example, because you are being treated in hospital), you should have someone contact the immigration office to explain your situation (and try to gather written evidence about communication with the immigration office). The visa on arrival in Indonesia is (basically) valid for 30 days only, and you must visit the nearest immigration office to extend it by another 30 days. Sometimes people forget that the day of arrival and the day of departure count as a whole day. So if you arrive on 1 January then you have to leave the country on (or before) 30 January. If you leave January 31 it will mean you will have to pay a one-day fine. The visa on arrival in Indonesia is a single entry visa, which means that it ends when you leave the country. The procedures for obtaining a visa on arrival are quite simple, provided you have the three necessary items: (1) a passport valid for at least six months, (2) a ticket showing that you are leaving Indonesia, and (3) USD $35. You must first go to the counter and pay USD $35 for a visa on arrival (cash only) and to receive your passport entrance stamp. After this, go to another counter where you will receive motifol visa (visa sticker). Finally, you have to go through the immigration checkpoint. Now you are free to enter Indonesia. Welcome! A little advice: check if the immigration officer actually gave the visa on arrival stamp in your passport (and not the free visa facility stamp). The two are the same and can confuse the immigration officer. However, it can be a costly mistake: not only do you lose USD $35 (the visa-free facility is free), but perhaps much worse, you have also lost the ability to extend your visa for another 30 days (the visa-free facility is not expandable). How to extend visas on arrival in Indonesia? Those who wish to determine the extent to which the visa on arrival is advised to start the process at least a week before the expiration. Even better: at least 10 days before the deadline because Indonesia is known for its long bureaucratic and if you did not bring the necessary papers (see below) then your visit to the immigration office was in vain. Meanwhile, the earliest time is allowed to extend your visa on arrival 14 days before the expiration (therefore, it is not possible to immediately extend it once you have just arrived in Indonesia). To extend your visa on arrival, you need to visit the nearest immigration office (in Indonesian: Kantor Imigrasi) two or three times. You must bring (or get when visiting the immigration office for the first time) the following: • Get (and fill out) two forms (Formulir untuk perpanjangan perpanjangan pertama visa kunjungan and Formulir Perubahan Data Orang Asing) as well as a folder. These forms and folders are free and should have an English version. • Your passport (valid for at least six months), including the original visa upon arrival. Make sure you include photocopies of the front/signature page and the original visa on the arrivals page. • A copy of the sponsor's identity card (an agency may act as a sponsor, but this will require an additional fee). • Copy of a ticket showing that you will leave Indonesia. • IDR 350,000 (approx. USD $26) to cover the costs. A small additional fee may be required for digital fingerprints and the photo they take of you. If you are a citizen of a nation not mentioned in the country list below, you cannot obtain a visa on arrival when you arrive at the immigration post in Indonesia. Instead, you need to arrange the correct visa at the Indonesian Embassy in your home country. If you want to stay longer than 30 days in Indonesia (or the extended 60 days) you must leave the country and re-enter using the correct visa (or visa-free entry facility). No unsmiled, foreigners fly from Jakarta to Singapore in the morning and return to Jakarta in the evening, thus ensuring an additional 30 day period in Indonesia. If you do this you don't break any laws, but in case you often enter Indonesia within a short time, then you can expect to get some questions at the immigration office when you enter Indonesia because immigration officers may suspect that you are actually (secretly) working in Indonesia (which constitutes a law-breaking offence). So, only do this if the purpose in Indonesia is allowed by visa. Visa on arrival (VOA): Purpose • Leisure, Tourism • Family • Social • Art and Culture • Government visits • Give lectures or attend seminars • Attend a meeting held by the head office or representative office in Indonesia • Continue your journey to another country Stay Of Stay - 30 (thirty) days: can be extended once with another period of 30 days Claim - A valid passport with a minimum validity of 6 (six) several months- Return ticket (or at least a ticket to a foreign country) showing departure within 30 days from arrival: Pay USD $ 35 (and additional costs of extending VOA) Visa may not be required No visa is required for a stay of up to 30 days, remember that if you live less than 30 days, you must: Keep a passport valid for at least six months with at least two empty visa pages Keep proof of onward and return flights Keep all documents required for the next destination Keep proof of sufficient funds in relation to your intended length of stay Confirm with your airline before your travel date that boarding will be allowed without a visa Arrive and depart the country from one of the ports listed here If you stay longer than 30 days, please see the requirements below. Visa on arrival It may be possible to obtain a visa upon arrival under limited circumstances. Visa requirements and travel restrictions vary greatly when you get a visa upon arrival. In addition, local immigration officials also have the right to deny entry to any for some reason. Due to concerns about coronavirus and COVID-19, many nationalities are prohibited from obtaining a visa upon arrival. Anyone who has travelled to regions affected by COVID-19 is unlikely to come in. We strongly recommend that you get a visa before departure. If you choose to obtain a visa upon arrival, you must ask your airline if boarding is permitted without a visa. Special protected or restricted area permit Some areas of Indonesia have limited/restricted access. Currently, 4 regions have such status: Maluku, Poso and Irian Jaya/West Papua. Applicants planning to visit the restricted/restricted access areas must obtain authorization from Indonesian authorities. Multiple entry visa applicants For multiple entry visas, your host in Indonesia must secure a government-approved invitation letter from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Jakarta that specifically approves you for a multi-entry visa. A letter from the host company is not sufficient.
